This will enable both institutions to overcome resource limitations and maximize the potential of joint research efforts. The institutions will explore opportunities for joint research projects to advance the frontiers of Chemistry. The projects will leverage the expertise of faculty members from both institutions, leading to joint publication and intellectual property development. This will be in effect for a period of five years with the option to renew upon mutual agreement. The institutions will determine the financial arrangements for each area of collaboration separately. The institutions will designate a point of contact for each area of collaboration to coordinate the activities of the collaboration. Intellectual property arising from joint research projects will be governed by a separate agreement between the institutions. This agreement may be terminated by either institution upon written notice to the other institution.
